Date: 2025-12-06 11:31:21

Session Summary: The patient presents with a chief complaint of severe headache and some chest pain. Psychosocial stressors include potential masked emotional distress and hesitations when discussing their feelings. Given the low audio energy level, there is a concern for underlying depression or lethargy. Immediate risk factors include the need to assess the severity of the chest pain and headache.

Recommended Action: RECOMMENDATION REPORT:

It is important for the patient to seek immediate medical attention given their symptoms of severe headache and chest pain. Both of these symptoms could indicate a serious medical condition requiring professional evaluation and treatment. Here are some general steps the patient can consider:

1. Consult a Healthcare Provider: Encourage the patient to contact or visit a healthcare provider or an emergency room as soon as possible to get a proper diagnosis and treatment.
2. Monitor Symptoms: Keep a record of when the symptoms started, their severity, and any additional symptoms. This information can be helpful for healthcare professionals.
3. Reduce Stress and Relax: While waiting for medical attention, suggest finding a comfortable position, taking slow deep breaths, and trying to relax, which may help in managing the symptoms temporarily.
4. Avoid Triggers: If any known triggers are causing these symptoms, advise avoiding them until a healthcare provider has been seen.

Please remind the patient that these suggestions are generated by an AI model and do not replace professional medical advice. Encourage them to seek immediate care from a healthcare professional for personalized diagnosis and treatment.
